MORE FLAVOUR FOR YOUR BARBIE? EASY.

Summer is here. Time to give the BBQ a once over. We recommend you run your BBQ for thirty minutes to burn those winter cobwebs away. Once everything's hot, scrub the grills and hotplate with a wire brush and season with oil. Let it cool down and you're ready to go!

Here at Rum and Que, we reckon you can't beat a cook-up on the barbie. That's why we've handcrafted a range of rubs, sauces and seasonings to turn your meat into a masterpiece.

Take a cube roll or whole eye fillet for example; they're a great way to feed a crowd. Sprinkle your favourite rub onto the meat at least an hour before cooking.

When the meat has an internal temperature of 51°C (125°F), you have a rare, cooked steak. Simply slice the meat into steaks and sear both sides for 30 seconds for a succulent, medium cooked steak.

GETTING SUSTAINABLE ON THE ROAD

If you're a customer of our East Tamaki branch, chances are you've had some orders delivered in our environmentally friendly Nissan Leaf.

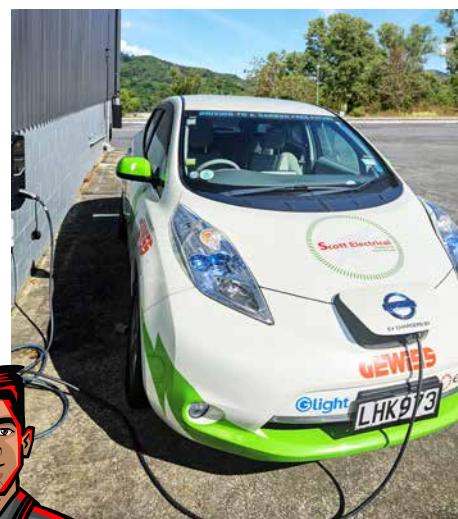

Stuart Nunnerley, co-director of the Scott Electrical East Tamaki branch explains that the Leaf is just one example of our business's commitment to a sustainable future. "We bought the fully electric vehicle a couple of years ago as a way to minimise carbon emissions."

The business also runs two 2024 Toyota RAV4 Hybrids out of our Head Office in Penrose, and Nunnerley says there are plans for all the Scott Electrical branches to gradually move their vans and utes to electric or hybrid models once viable alternatives become available.

"We're seeing a changing of the guard in the market," Nunnerley says. "Customers are serious about sustainability and want to do business with suppliers who share that commitment and are doing something about it."

We have a number of planet friendly initiatives under way. We'll tell you more about these in future issues of Watts @ Scotts.
